XIII

in Confinement for many years to come. They will pay for the terror ~~that~~ and destruction spread by their hands. They must pay for the crimes which have shaken humanity to its very foundations, and they will, but the civilian population which spawned and backed them up in all their nefarious crimes will get by comparatively unscratched and will be left alone to hatch another brood of German youth to be brought up under the same teaching that twice has sent the world reeling with conflict.

Linz is eighty miles inside the Austrian border from Germany, situated in the Danube Valley along the Danube river. Twenty miles southeast of here in the same valley along the same river there a town called Mauthausen and if you asked an Austrian where it is he'll tell you he doesn't know; he's never heard of it. He'll grow uneasy before your stare but he's never heard of it. Mathausen is the site of one of the world's most horrible creations: A Concentration camp. Words cannot describe what took place there nor can you find words to describe what is to be found there today. Of all the heinous things the world has ever seen without a doubt this is the most heinous of them all. And only those who's eyes have looked upon these things can fully believe and realize the nature of the evil and evil stark horribleness of it all. And once you've been there you can never forget it; once you've smelled that inhuman of human smells there's no sense of smell to anything else. You wake up in the morning with it in your nostrils and the taint stays with you throughout the day.

Special Collections - Woodruff Library - Emory University- This Material Maybe Protected by Copyright Law (Title 17 U.S. Code).

XIII

Special Collections - Woodruff Library - Emory University - This Material Maybe Protected by Copyright Law (Title 17 U.S. Code).

The people were sent to Maltbarun for one purpose only; to be exterminated and this was done systematically. Men, women, and children were sent there. None were spared. They worked at inhuman tasks, and received a diet of one half a loaf of bread, which contained hardly any flour or meal at all, and a cup of soup with nothing of said substance in it at all. They worked until they fainted once, then they were shot or killed by other various means.

A Greek, who spoke seven different languages, [illegible] took me to where the Germans had been digging into a mountain for an underground factory. Seven thousand four hundred men died every day from falling earth, cave ins, and suffocation and every day new men took their place. This man, the Greek, had been there only a short time. He came to the camp with his wife and little girl. Immediately he had been beaten unmercifully by the S.S. & his wife was taken away from him, and his little girl was scalded to death with steaming water. He was an old man.

Special Collections - Woodruff Library - Emory University - This Material Maybe Protected by Copyright Law (Title 17 U.S. Code).

XIV

There a stairway hewn out of the hill side and it contains one hundred and sixty-eight steps. A man had to walk to the top of these steps with a slab of rock that required today three S.S. men to roll and if that man faltered and he was immediately shot by S.S. men lining the way. You can see how long a man lived at Mauthausen. I walked up those steps without rock or anything and at the half way mark I was pretty well winded. One hundred and sixty eight steps is an awful long way.

The gas chambers are just like bath rooms, shower rooms. The gas issues from spickets just as the water in a shower does. When a man had grown to weak to work in the mines he was given a bar of soap and told to take a shower. In all probability the men knew what was in store for them as did but either if they didn't there was nothing they could do. Generally they were in such a weak condition that resistance was impossible as it was impractical any way. They were led into the "shower rooms", first stripping and burning their clothes, with the bar of soap in their hands and then the gas was turned on, suffocating them. They then were taken out and burned. You could always tell which was the old and the younger man. The younger man always burned with a brighter flame because of the fat inside of him. The old man's body was worn and lean and his fat had been worn out long before. Today you see piles and stacks of human bones, blackened and half consumed by fire. You can find the stacks half the size of houses.

Special Collections - Woodruff Library - Emory University- This Material Maybe Protected by Copyright Law (Title 17 U.S. Code).

In the hospital the latest brain of the German medical science practiced. In one room you can find any single part of the human body well preserved behind glass enclosures. Each section, each an organ, in bisected, showing the half one way, the half the other, the inside, the end side, quartered one way, sliced another. The brain, the heart, the neck, the tongue, the liver, inside of the spinal Column, the entrails, the sexual organs — all halved and quartered. The German doctors would come there to study and if he had a whim and wanted to see what the ear or eye looked like bisected one of the prisoners was quickly shot and the part needed extracted.

Special Collections - Woodruff Library - Emory University- This Material Maybe Protected by Copyright Law (Title 17 U.S. Code).

It was a huge system and it a large camp. In one room there was a table of smooth cement, slanted slightly from the Hot to the East. Here the bodies were cut half, quartered, and the arms and legs taken off. Down the center of the table a furrow one half inch wide and a half inch deep ran. This was for the blood to follow as it ran off the table. On the walls were charts and diagrams showing the proper lines for slicing a body in the desired proportions. These halved and quartered bodies were stoked into incineration, furnaces, and cremated.

Special Collections - Woodruff Library - Emory University - This Material Maybe Protected by Copyright Law (Title 17 U.S. Code).

You walk about the Camp now and see dying men by the hundreds. Breathing dead men. Their ~~bodies~~ are so emaciated that you can every bone in their body can be seen; ~~and~~ actually see their heart beating. There is nothing that can be done for them, they are too far gone. Tuberculosis. Malnutrition. Starvation. You see a man with large hands and feet and you know that he must have weighed two hundred pounds once, but now he'd probably tip the scales at no more than fifty pounds. There probably five thousand left and eight dying every day. We have doctors and nurses but all the knowledge of medical science is of no avail. They are a hopeless case. We have liberated them from their evil masters but they were killed by the Gestapo and S.S. before we got them and are just now dying. Their liberation is yet to come.

Special Collections - Woodruff Library - Emory University - This Material Maybe Protected by Copyright Law (Title 17 U.S. Code).

~~XIII~~ XIV

The Jews told of the last days at the camp, before the Americans came. Just before the end the S.S. men, the guards, were replaced by old men of different organizations such as fire fighters, Volksturm, etc., and the S.S. left. They knew they would be killed if they stayed on there until the camp was overrun by the Americans so they brought up these men, mostly Civilian organizations from to take the rap for them! And yet a Germanic is a German, old or young, and on the very day the American planes flew through to the camp the two hundred - inmates of the prison had been shot by these new guards. The last men were forcing to be herded into a cave which had been rigged with dynamite. They were rushing to complete the job of extermination before the bombs got there. They failed by one day.

Police dogs were used by the S.S. Guards to help patrol the fences around the camp and also for the purpose of tracking down ~~xxxx~~ escaped prisoners. On the day they were liberated the kennels where these dogs were kept were raided and the dogs killed and eaten raw. To a stomach so weak from malnourishment any sort of solid food would have been a dangerous commodity. Raw flesh was too much indeed. The next day hundreds died from eating the dog meat. Death and the quenching of human life has had a field day through out the rest of this place.

Special Collections - Woodruff Library - Emory University - This Material Maybe Protected by Copyright Law (Title 17 U.S. Code).

XXE

Malt house; place of horrors, unspeakable horrors. To compare anything with it you have to dig into your memory of night mares. For this alone the whole German race should be weighted down in shackles and made to labor at hard labor for fifty years. And this is just a minute fraction of the cruelties these people practiced. Never before was such Carnage Carried on and on so large a scale. Undoubtedly the German is the master of the Art of torture; he has not practiced it to the highest degree. Undoubtedly the German people, as a whole, are the cold bloodiest murderers and ~~fiends~~ satanic despots that were ever conceived. Nowhere in history can you find anything half as fiendish as the German Hun, the German mind. Not even the barbarious butcher of Genghis Khan, or all of the monstrosities of the World revolutions put together can come any where near in Comparison

Special Collections - Woodruff Library - Emory University - This Material Maybe Protected by Copyright Law (Title 17 U.S. Code).

X R

Special Collections - Woodruff Library - Emory University - This Material Maybe Protected by Copyright Law (Title 17 U.S. Code).

500